Investment objectives

If you require assistance with this section, please contact the sender of this form.

Discretionary Managed

Please refer to 'Business Terms and Conditions' for an explanation of the Discretionary Managed Service. Unless you notify us otherwise we will proceed on the basis that your investment objectives are a balanced return from income and capital growth, that you are prepared to accept a medium level of risk and that you do not wish to place any restrictions on the amount or type of investments in which we are permitted to conduct transactions.

Dealing with Advice

Please refer to 'Business Terms and Conditions' for an explanation of Advisory only. Unless you notify us otherwise you manage and monitor your own investments but you still have the option of asking any of our fund managers for specific information on the markets or recommendations to assist you in your decision making process. We are not obliged to monitor your investments on an ongoing basis as per the Discretionary Managed service.

Execution Only

Under our Execution Only services, we will buy or sell investments on your specific instruction. This service is appropriate for those who wish to retain all responsibility for their investment decisions.

Please indicate below if you wish to vary these objectives or requirements, if not as set out above.

Primary client investment objective

Please indicate your overall objective by ticking one box:

1. Emphasis on capital growth

This is usually appropriate for those who have sufficient income from other sources and are consequently willing to accept a lower than average portfolio yield in order to focus on capital appreciation. Investment portfolios with this focus may be subject to above average volatility, especially when market conditions are poor.

2. A balanced return from income and capital growth

This criterion is for those requiring long term growth of both capital and income, but who are willing to forgo some of the dynamics of (1) and (3).

3. Emphasis on income

This is mainly for those whose income needs are more important than capital growth. You should note that maintaining a large fixed interest component in order to meet the income requirement may, over the long term, erode the real value of your capital. Alternatively, if high yielding equities and/or convertible equivalents are selected, this could increase the potential for capital appreciation, but may also increase the risk profile of the investment portfolio.

4. Cautious

A cautious approach to investment is similar to those who require a balanced return from income and capital growth. However, an emphasis is placed on capital preservation with a larger weighting towards assets which we view as being relatively low risk.

It should be emphasised that all of the above objectives are very broad outlines which can accommodate some degree of preferred emphasis. For example, in (2) above, you might require some leaning towards either income or capital, without either being the prime function of your Primary investment objective.

Capacity for loss

This refers to the Trust's ability to absorb falls in the value of your investment. If any loss of capital would have a detrimental effect on your standard of living, we wish to take this into account in ascertaining the level of risk that you are willing to take. Therefore please can you indicate, in terms of percentage or value, the amount you are willing to absorb in the box below, referring to our CPL guide.

Risk

Investment risk can be defined as the deviation of the expected returns from an investment over time. We tend to think of risk in predominantly negative terms, as something to be avoided or a threat that we hope won't materialise. In the investment world, however, risk is inseparable from performance and, rather than being desirable or undesirable, is simply necessary. A common definition for investment risk is deviation from an expected outcome. That deviation can be positive or negative, and relates to the idea of "no pain, no gain" - to achieve higher returns in the long run you have to accept more short-term volatility.

How much volatility depends on your risk tolerance - an expression of the capacity to assume volatility based on specific financial circumstances and the propensity to do so, taking into account your psychological comfort with uncertainty and the possibility of incurring large short-term losses.

With certain investments we can quantify specific types of risk. For example, with overseas investments there is currency risk because the currency in which the investment is priced may fluctuate in value against sterling in the foreign exchange markets. Liquidity risk is the risk that arises from the difficulty of selling an asset. An investment may sometimes need to be sold quickly and there may be an insufficient secondary market which may prevent the investment being sold or limit the proceeds that can be generated by the sale. Illiquid assets include shares in unlisted companies, unlisted hedge funds, Permanent Interest Bearing Shares (PIBS) and direct property investments.

Preferred level of risk

There will inevitably be periods when share prices fall and these will be difficult to forecast, although they are often more obvious with hindsight. Such events can be categorised as market risk and are something which investors in securities have to accept. Furthermore, any attempt to categorise risk will be subjective because its perception will vary according to each individual's experience and prejudice. Generally, those who are risk averse should not invest in equities. You should not commit funds to the stock market which might be needed to meet short term obligations, unless you accept responsibility for such action.

Furthermore, we stress that in respect of our Discretionary Service and the Advisory Service, risk is considered by us on an overall portfolio basis (including, unless advised to the contrary, ISAs operated through us) and may be achieved by a combination of high, low or medium risk investments. That is to say, in respect of those services, the overall risk presented by your portfolio of investments as a whole is considered and not the risk attaching to each and every investment comprised in such a portfolio.

Accordingly, should the circumstances of any investment change, it should not automatically be sold because the risk level is different than at purchase, but should be viewed in the context of the overall portfolio.

The percentage exposure will be calculated by reference to the prevailing market value of the portfolio. In addition, it is not our intention that these percentages are totally precise but that they provide general parameters for the portfolio. In the event you elect to have a high or medium risk portfolio, this will not preclude us from recommending or investing in investments which have a risk profile lower than these.

Most importantly, you can help to avoid any disappointment in our handling of your investment affairs if there is a clear understanding between us of your requirements. If you have the slightest doubt that we have not properly understood your requirements, please ask the person responsible for your account to confirm in writing their understanding and intentions regarding the management of your investment. If this cannot be readily resolved to your satisfaction, please contact our compliance department.

What is your preferred general risk level for this portfolio as a whole?

Lower Medium Risk (Cautious)

This risk profile would have no direct exposure to higher risk investments with a minimum allocation of 50% towards investments which we view as being of a lower medium risk. This minimum allocation would typically be formed of corporate and government bonds and infrastructure depending on prevailing market conditions.

Medium Risk (Income Investment Strategy)

This risk profile would have a typical maximum allocation of 10% towards investments which we would view as being of a higher risk. This allocation could be formed of emerging markets equities and smaller companies.

Medium Risk (Balanced Investment Strategy)

This risk profile would have a typical maximum allocation of 15% towards investments which we would view as being of a higher risk. This allocation could be formed of emerging markets equities and smaller companies.

Higher Medium Risk (Growth Investment Strategy)

This risk profile would have a typical maximum allocation of 25% towards investments which we would view as being of a higher risk. This allocation could be formed of emerging markets equities and smaller companies.

High Risk (Growth Investment Strategy)

This risk profile would have no restrictions on risk, unless specified in the investment preferences section.

Please note the above breakdowns of risk are indicative and could be subject to change. If you have any individual percentage allocations towards risk then please detail these in the section seven overleaf. This should be done in conjunction with reading our Investment Risk Guide and if you have any questions we are more than happy to talk you through this.

Risk (continued)

Having read our Risk Investment Guide please provide answers to the following questions in the boxes provided.

1. Which of the following best describes the Trust's overall financial situation including cash held on deposit and other assets such as property but excluding stock market investments?

- a) Sufficient money but not enough to fully fund our future needs
- b) A substantial amount of money which will comfortably fund our future commitments

2. The direct financial impact of a loss and market volatility can be challenging, however, it is also important to give due consideration to the non-financial impacts of such a situation. Non-financial impacts can include stress, regret for past decisions and concerns for the future. How easily would the Trustees adapt to an unexpected and negative financial change?

- a) We would find it hard to adapt to such a change
- b) Somewhat uneasily
- c) We would adapt easily and move on

3. If the value of the Trust's portfolio and its ability to generate income was reduced by 10% how would this change your investment objectives and impact upon future commitments such as distribution to a life tenant or beneficiary? What if this reduction in value and income was 25% in a financial crisis? Please tick the applicable boxes.

- | | 10%
Lower | 25%
Lower |
| a) We would need to significantly change our investment objectives and alter our plans to cover the shortfall | <input type="checkbox"/> | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| b) We would have to moderate our investment objectives but we would be able to meet future plans by drawing on other assets or income sources | <input type="checkbox"/> | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| c) It would have no or little impact on our investment objectives or plans | <input type="checkbox"/> | <input type="checkbox"/> |

4. Following a market correction, conditions can remain challenging and it can take a number of months or sometimes even years before the market has stabilised and your initial portfolio value has been recovered. During this period your portfolio may not meet your growth expectations or income requirements. How long could the Trustees tolerate a difficult market environment where your portfolio is losing value or failing to meet your investment objectives?

- a) Less than 1 year
- b) 1 to 3 years
- c) 3 to 5 years

5. In a situation where you needed to find cash funds to cover an unexpected distribution which scenario would best describe your situation:

- a) We would need to convert most or all of the portfolio to cash at short notice
- b) We may require access to a significant proportion of the portfolio within the next year
- c) We would not need to withdraw more than 20% of the portfolio
- d) We do not require access to the investment portfolio and have sufficient liquid resources to cover a change in circumstances

6. History suggests that there is a trade-off between the pursuit of long-term capital growth and the preservation of capital. With a £250,000 investment what would be your willingness to accept risk in order to generate a return over a five year period?

- a) A cautious investment strategy which has the potential to generate a return of up to 4% per annum but the portfolio could fall in value by 10% in any given year
- b) A balanced investment strategy which has the potential to generate a return of 6% per annum but the portfolio could fall in value by 15% in any given year
- c) A growth investment strategy which has the potential to generate a return of 8% per annum but the portfolio could fall in value by 20% in any given year
- d) An "aggressive" growth investment strategy which has the potential to generate a return of 10% per annum but the portfolio could fall in value by 25% in any given year

7. Do you have any other investment preferences? eg. risk, ethical requirements such as environmental, social and governance (specify details and percentages as appropriate)

8. For how long do you intend to invest in the Stock Market?

- Less than two years
- 2 - 5 years
- 5 - 10 years
- More than 10 years
- Other (please specify e.g. lifetime)

The investment criteria set for your account may need to be changed to meet any variation in your circumstances. It is better if these can be planned and phased in over a period of time to mitigate inhibiting factors such as capital gains tax or corporation tax. Accordingly, we will from time to time ask you to update the information you have provided, but it is preferable for you to initiate this, especially when planning such matters as retirement when you may require more income from your investments.

The foregoing comments should be regarded as a broad outline and not considered definitive. This note is solely our attempt to give our clients a reasonable understanding of how we approach this subject.

Any subsequent revision of the above should be agreed in writing. If the above sections are not fully completed, we will deal with your investments on the basis that there are no specific, or general investment objectives to which we must have regard when giving advice or dealing.

The value of the investments and the income arising from them can go up as well as down and investors may get back less than they have invested. Past performance is not necessarily a guide to future performance.
